SETTLEMENT OF TRACKLESS DESERTS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Senator CRAGIN, a member of the Senate Committee on Territories, to-day introduced a short bill, and a letter dated at the Grand Indian Agency, Nebraska, December 20, 1870, addressed to him by Gen. ALFRED SULLY, explaining the bill. The letter was referred to a special committee, of which John W. Forney was chairman, with leave to report by bill or otherwise. The letter was referred to a special report, which was ordered to be printed. The bill provides for the organization of the Territory of the Yellowstone. The letter says that the Cheyennes who roamed when the Indians were removed to the new Territory of the Yellowstone will be removed when the Indians from the vicinity of Fort Laramie and the Platte River are removed to the Indian Territory, and that if the Cheyennes are allowed to remain where they are they will soon be exterminated by the Sioux. The Cheyennes were promised when the Indians were removed to the new Territory that they should be allowed to remain in the Arkansas Valley, and they have been assured by the Indian Bureau that they would be allowed to remain there. The letter says that the Cheyennes are peaceably disposed, and that the Sioux are not. The letter says that the Indians that the President would not ratify those agreements were carried out and the Indians would be removed to the Indian Territory, and that they would then be compelled to go to the Yellowstone. The letter says that the Indians will be allowed to remain where they are if they will live on the reservations assigned them. The letter says that the Indians that the President would not ratify those agreements were carried out and the Indians would be removed to the Indian Territory, and that they would then be compelled to go to the Yellowstone. The letter says that the Indians will be allowed to remain where they are if they will live on the reservations assigned them.

The Committee on Public Lands have finally agreed favorably on the reconsideration of Wilkinson's bill granting lands in aid of the Lake Superior and Puget Sound road. The Senate took no action in the matter, although the report favorably was given with the unanimous consent of the Committee on Territories. The House bill for the relief of the Indians did not differ from the Senate bill in any essential particular. It was thought that there was no opposition to the measure, and that it would be reported back to the House and passed. In the Senate, on the 17th inst., Mr. Ramsey, of Minnesota, offered a resolution to deeply interested in court matters, which provided that from the bills appropriating annual salaries for various lines of ocean steamships be made a special order, whereupon the Senate would proceed to consider the bills with a view to their passage. The resolution was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

The resolution proposes by Mr. Roberts is somewhat broader than that offered by Mr. Dixon. Mr. Roberts practically intended to say that the tariff should be reduced to a revenue standard, or that its protective features should be removed. Both forms of that law propose that it shall be reduced to secure a free trade basis "as is consistent with the interest of the whole country."

The protectionists contend that it is at least 30 per cent below the specific rate of duty which is necessary to afford adequate protection to the industry to which it applies. Hence the call which appears in the letter referred to, for a meeting of the Directors, to consider whether the good work shall be abandoned finally or whether the plan of successful operation can be devised.

The plan of the society, as organized, contemplated not only the specific prosecution of cases of swindling, and the detection of the swindlers, but also the enactment of new laws on the subject, and, more especially, the general dissemination of information concerning it. It is apparent that the latter object should be kept in view, as, so long as the people are ignorant of the methods employed by the swindlers, so long will they be victimized. The Directors, therefore, should not lose sight of this feature of the case, but should endeavor to secure the co-operation of the press of the country in so doing.

Mr. Dixon (Rep.), of Cook County, offered an amendment in the nature of a substitute, consisting of the sixth paragraph of the Illinois Republican platform, which is as follows:

"That as currency is necessary to the prosperity of the people, it should be furnished by the General Government in sufficient quantity to meet the demands of the business interests of the country, and that the power to issue paper money is a power which belongs exclusively to the General Government, and which cannot be delegated to corporations or individuals."

Mr. Dixon said he did not think that the Federal authorities had the right to issue paper money, but that the power belonged to the States. He was in favor of the Government issuing legal tenders, but not of the system of national banks. He was in favor of the Government issuing legal tenders, but not of the system of national banks.
